CHAIRMAN'S REPORT

FOR HALF A CENTURY VANCOUVER FOUNDATION

HAS WORKED TO IMPROVE THE QUALITY OF LIFE

FOR BRITISH COLUMBIANS. IT HAS BEEN

INCREDIBLY SUCCESSFUL.

The investments that people have made in their community through the Foundation, the stewardship of the community's representatives on our Board and the ability the Foundation has demonstrated to sensibly meet emerging needs have been joined in an effective and responsive organization of which I am proud to be Chairman.

Nineteen ninety-three was the 50th Anniversary of Vancouver Foundation. Quite apart from the festivities which celebrated fifty years of service, the year was marked by a sequence of events which made it all the more special.

Vancouver Foundation is the largest community foundation in Canada, with a capital fund of $355 million – a remarkable achievement, given the size of the population we serve.

The number of public and private funds and foundations in the custodianship of Vancouver Foundation rose by 34 to 536.

In 1993 more than $22 million was distributed to charitable organizations serving the needs of British Columbians. Approximately $15 million was for designated organizations and $7 million was awarded in the form of grants.

Vancouver Foundation shares its roots with the Vancouver Welfare Federation which today is known as the United Way of the Lower Mainland. This was recognized in the Act which established the Foundation through the creation of the General Fund, the income from which, at the discretion of the Board of Directors of Vancouver Foundation, was to be paid to the United Way of the Lower Mainland. As there was confusion about the term "general fund," which historically generated income for the United Way, there arose a need to clarify the purpose of this fund which has grown to more than $10 million. I am therefore extremely pleased to advise that the Act, which established the Vancouver Foundation, has been amended by the Legislature. Effective June 3, 1993, the General Fund was renamed the "United Way of the Lower Mainland Endowment Fund." Now, if you wish to assist the valuable efforts of the United Way you may do so by designating their fund and be confident that the income will flow to them.

While not evident in the Financial Statements, the transfer of the assets of the W.J. VanDusen Foundation in Calgary are now being made to Vancouver Foundation. As many are aware, the income from the W.J. VanDusen Foundation was distributed to charities in British Columbia with Vancouver Foundation acting as agent. Therefore, while the transfer will not increase the amount of funds available for distribution, the assets of the W.J. VanDusen Foundation will continue in perpetuity to benefit the Province our founder called home.

Another event which marked this year was the decision to place the investment portfolio of Vancouver Foundation with three money management firms. For virtually all of our 50 years history, the Board of Directors, through its Investment Committee, had given guidance to the Treasurer with respect to the investment of funds. On July 1, 1993, Don Fraser, our Treasurer for 12 years, retired. The record he accumulated during his tenure with Vancouver Foundation is a testament to his integrity, competence and diligence. Nevertheless, with Don's departure, the Board decided that the investment of $350 million was more than one person should, in all prudence, be charged with managing. Consequently, when Don retired, the portfolio was divided between Connor, Clark & Lunn Investment Management Ltd., M.K. Wong & Associates Ltd., and Leith Wheeler Investment Counsel Ltd. The activities of these three firms continue to be overseen by our Investment Committee which sets policy, establishes terms of reference, monitors investments and assesses results.

While it is anticipated that the move from inhouse to external money management will result in higher returns on investment, it will necessarily be accompanied by increased investment costs which will be reflected as a charge against gross income. At the same time, the outlook for relatively low interest rates and the constant demand for administrative services, (the costs of which have been covered through a fee based on income plus income earned on grants pending distribution) means that revenues will likely not be sufficient. Therefore, the Foundation's Board of Directors decided to change the basis for the administration fee, effective April 1, 1994 to .25 percent of the market value of the capital per annum. This change in Vancouver Foundation's fee structure represents a significant and necessary adjustment of which you should be aware.

There was a further change which took place in 1993 to which I must also give prominence. At the Annual General Meeting, after completing the maximum two, four-year terms, Dick Bradshaw stepped down as Chairman of our Investment Committee and Vice-Chairman of the Board of Directors. Dick's participation on the Foundation's Executive Committee as well as his wise counsel on the Investment Committee was always well founded and we miss his acumen. In his stead, Bruce Buchanan was elected to the Board as a Member-at-Large. Bruce is a respected member of the community and brings us valuable experience gained as a corporate leader and as a member of our Environment Advisory Committee.

A further special mention must go to Leo Amighetti, Q.C., of Russell & DuMoulin who is our Legal Advisor. Mr. Amighetti's work in guiding us through the various Trust Estate issues we have faced this year has been brilliant. Certainly his contributions over recent years have earned him the esteem of Vancouver Foundation.

Throughout the year, because of the fixed terms of our Advisory Committees, a number of people have had to depart and others have kindly agreed to join. As experts in their fields, whether as volunteers or professionals, they bring to Vancouver Foundation an insight and base of knowledge we could never otherwise have.

On behalf of the Board of Directors, I offer sincere thanks to the departing Advisory Committee members who helped us to meet the charitable objectives of our donors: Health and Welfare – Mr. Bert Massiah, Mr. Gavin Perryman; Arts & Culture – Ms. Kitty Heller; Education – Ms. Elizabeth Jarvis, Mr. Robin Brayne; Youth – His Honour Judge David Pendleton; and Environment – Mr. T. Murray Rankin, Mr. Robert Prescott-Allen, Ms. Liz Osborn.

I am also delighted to welcome a number of new Advisory Committee members who I am sure will bring a wealth of experience: Health & Welfare – Mr. Stan deMello, Mrs. Shirley Kamerling-Roberts; Child & Family – Mrs. Ruth Williams, Ms. Joanne Brown, Ms. Anne Cochran, Mr. Ron Yuen; Youth – Mr. Nelson F.K. Leong, Mr. Andrew Morrison, Mr. Doug Soo; and Environment – Ms. Claire Dansereau.

While I have thanked the many volunteers who have given so much to Vancouver Foundation, the work of its staff cannot pass unnoticed. They are a small and incredibly dedicated group of people who constantly do more than is asked or even expected of them. Judy Charlton, Trish Pemberton, Don Johnston, Marit Gilbert, Annie Jun, Jane Macdonald, Barbara Oates, John Binsted, Nicole Manseau and Richard Mulcaster do the work of three times their number. They counsel, facilitate, expedite and encourage, and in so doing, contribute immeasurably to the work of Vancouver Foundation.

Finally, I cannot complete my report without a comment about our 50th Anniversary Gala Celebration held on November 9, 1993. More than 1,000 people attended an extraordinary festival in the Trade and Convention Centre which was organized by a group of charitable organizations led by Dorothy Finnigan who called themselves "The Friends of Vancouver Foundation." The artistic talent of many of the organizations we had helped over the years was placed front and centre and they excelled. The story of Vancouver Foundation was told by those who had benefitted from its work. We were brought to our feet and to tears when more than 250 young people from 58 countries sang "Canada, This Is My Home."

The proceeds for the Gala Celebration were used to create seven new $10,000 discretionary funds in each of the Foundation's fields-of-interest.

The final and very fitting memory of that evening was the reading of a quotation used by the Foundation's first Chairman, Mr. W.J. VanDusen. It is one we would do well to adopt for the next fifty years:

I am only one
But I am someone
I cannot do everything
But I can do something
What I can do
I ought to do
What I ought to do
By the Grace of God
I will do

VANCOUVER FOUNDATION FIFTY 50 YEARS

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

IN 1943, A TIME WHEN GOVERNMENT HAD LITTLE TO DO WITH THE PROVISION OF SOCIAL SERVICES, MR. W.J. VANDUSEN, WITH THE SPONSORSHIP OF THE VANCOUVER WELFARE FEDERATION, INITIATED THE CREATION OF VANCOUVER FOUNDATION.

ince its founding and spending only the income from capital, the Foundation has distributed many millions of dollars to charities across the Province. It has also provided a philanthropic means by which people, through their charitable support of its works, could help make our community a better place and, in the process, has reduced the burden on government.

By 1993, it became clear that governments cannot generate enough revenues to meet all of the responsibilities taken on over the last 50 years. The public's capacity and willingness to pay higher taxes has been exhausted. Therefore, no matter what their political persuasion, governments are reducing services in order to cut costs.

Today, therefore, we hope for a more robust economy, one that is strong enough to carry the growing collection of fees, royalties and tolls being created in lieu of more taxes, and that is still able to bring about fiscal good health.

Even if our country does begin to enjoy better financial circumstances, those who wish to see the role of government diminished will have to recognize that, unless we are prepared to do without, or provide the difference, society must bear the brunt. Public acceptance of this emerging reality will give cheerless relief to the politicians and beleaguered bureaucracy, for it may also mean sharing previously held power.

With governments pulling back from their historical role as service providers, the decisions as to whether programs are to be maintained will be thrust back at the public. The question will be, "if you want it are you prepared to do it yourself, or at least pay for it by supporting the charities who will deliver it?" Like it or not, this approach would appear to move us toward adoption of an American model. If that is the case, our government will also have to make changes to our tax structures in order to generate increased charitable donations.

An indication of the dilemma we find ourselves in is evidenced in British Columbia, with government's notion that certain Crown agencies should become quasi charitable foundations. It has already been done to support universities and hospitals - now too, with heritage and culture. By dangling unrestricted tax credits for gifts to the Crown, as only government can, it is hoped that the public will part with more dollars in support of government's good works. However, the non-profit sector can only offer receipts which provide donors with tax credits ranging from 17 to 40 percent (depending upon donation amount, provincial taxes and the taxpayer's situation). This may be seen by some as a handicap to non-profits in the competition for charitable donations. It will be interesting to see how this idea grows in this Province and across Canada.

Throughout its history the Foundation has played an important but low-key role by simply responding to the needs identified by community organizations. Now, while it is beyond our capacity to financially compensate for the paucity of government funds, we are bound to contribute to, and in some instances, lead efforts that will make up the difference.

More and more of the grants we provide from our discretionary funds are being made to help communities plan for and cope with emerging needs such as the effects of rapid urbanization, the shut down of the local mill, or the modern complexities of family and community life. However, our characteristic reactiveness is not enough.

Although sometimes tempting, obstinate self-righteousness in the face of government shortcomings would defeat the purpose for which we exist. Therefore, over the last year, we have pursued a more inter-active form of philanthropic leadership. We see our new role as working together with other private sector funders, community agencies and increasingly, with corporations as well as government, to make things happen that otherwise would not.

> The value of the community foundation model is demonstrated by the success of Vancouver Foundation. It offers a means by which residents in regions, cities and towns across the Province can give back to their communities. It provides a perpetual source of income which, directed by community representatives, can meet the needs of the community and reduce dependence on government. Therefore, as an outgrowth of the success of Vancouver Foundation, we have provided seed funding to help launch new community foundations and we share our experience with them so that they might develop the long term plans, communications strategies and administrative systems necessary for them to flourish. It has also been particularly rewarding to work with Community Foundations of Canada which, hugely assisted by the funding of the J.W. McConnell Foundation, promotes and develops the community foundation movement across Canada. It is a demonstration of the vitality and promise of home-grown philanthropy.

- > Probably the most useful assistance that can be provided in any endeavour is to help someone to help themselves. Therefore, over the last several years, Vancouver Foundation, together with the United Way of the Lower Mainland, the City of Vancouver and Heritage Canada (a new amalgam of federal ministries) has funded the Technical Assistance Program. Through this program, charitable agencies (particularly the smaller ones) across the Province as well as in Vancouver have been given the resources to bring in outside experts to train them to do their work more effectively. Last year $131,000 was awarded in grants ranging from $300 to $4,000 to 58 different organizations. The need for the program which offers such practical assistance was demonstrated by the 137 requests received in 1993. In light of this, the level of our funding and the breadth of our involvement was and is likely to grow.
- > Vancouver Foundation's increased emphasis on technical assistance is also evident in the Arts Stabilization Program which aims to provide the necessary management expertise and funding to put the principal arts institutions in Vancouver on a firm financial footing and to see them achieve their artistic missions.

Qualified arts organizations will be offered, at no cost, the assistance of experts to help them put in place comprehensive long term management and financial strategies aimed at "break even or better" operations. Once an organization is able to demonstrate its competence it can qualify for a grant given over five years. In the first year a portion of the grant will be designated to provide matching funds toward the elimination of any accumulated deficit. In subsequent years, and provided the organization continues to adhere successfully to the regimen, the balance of the grant will be applied toward the creation of adequate working capital reserves.

The expected success of the Arts Stabilization Program and the experience gained will demonstrate the value of this business-like approach and provide the base of knowledge which other communities in the Province and across the country will need in order to create their own versions. Recognizing this potential, Vancouver Foundation, together with the City of Vancouver, as well as the Provincial and Federal Governments, have collectively committed $3.5 million out of the total $6 million required for the five year project. The remaining $2.5 million is to be raised from the private and corporate sectors.

Despite the tremendous financial assets and considerable experience accumulated over 50 years, Vancouver Foundation cannot look to the past to solve the future. Diminished funding from government sources and the increasingly complex needs of a growing and changing community demand much more. Fortunately, we have the voluntary assistance of some 50 experts serving on the Advisory Committees in each of our fields of interest. Through the involvement of our Advisory Committees in the development of our granting programs we have been able to identify and evaluate how best we might encourage and support the work of the non-profit sector in the coming years. The benefits of that foresight have already been evidenced in 1993. As a result, flexibility in the face of shifting government priorities, a willingness to take a stand, confidence to take the lead, and the reinforced understanding that we exist to serve the community, are key elements in our grantmaking philosophy.

Because of the generation which supported the Foundation over its first 50 years, Vancouver Foundation will carry on in perpetuity. However, in order for us to better meet the needs of future British Columbians (which will be as different from ours as ours are from the ones faced in 1943), we will need continued support, especially in the form of discretionary funds. The community's faith in the future and trust in the Foundation's capacity to exercise good stewardship and to respond effectively has been demonstrated over the last half century. Therefore, if you have enjoyed success, deriving your rewards from the community and you share our convictions, I urge you to demonstrate your confidence by re-investing in your community. The generations to come will thank you for it!

HISTORY OF THE VANCOUVER FOUNDATION

IN THE BEGINNING

It has all the elements of a good legend. There is an unlikely hero – in this case, a little-known woman by the name of Alice MacKay, whose wish was to do something special for Vancouver. There is a benevolent power, in the person of industrialist/philanthropist, W.J. VanDusen, who makes her wish come true. And there is an element of magic in the transformation of $1,000 into over $350 million.

Best of all, the legendary tale of the genesis of Vancouver Foundation does have a historical basis. However, as the years have passed, the story has evolved into a subtle blend of fact and mythology. Attempts to discover details about the life of Alice MacKay have turned up little, since she was a single woman who left no close relatives. We may never know with certainty to what extent she was the catalyst to W.J. VanDusen's grand vision of a community foundation, but what is clear is that the first testamentary gift received by the Vancouver Foundation came from Miss Alice G. MacKay.

Honorary Life Member of the Vancouver Foundation Board, Mr. Tom Brown, was also a Director of the Community Chest¹ in the 1950's. His recollections of the historic events not only illuminate the Alice MacKay saga, but also reveal how closely the roots of Vancouver Foundation and the United Way were intertwined.

"In 1944 it came to the attention of the Vancouver Welfare Federation that Miss Alice MacKay had bequeathed $1000 to the organization. Since she had specified that only the interest was to be used, the Federation found that instead of $1000, they only had $30 – interest rates being only 3% in those days! Well, this thing kept cropping up at Directors' meetings, and they didn't know what the devil to do with it. So they turned to Mr. VanDusen for advice."

W.J. VanDusen, as Chairman of the Federation's Endowment Committee, had recommended and overseen the establishment of the "Vancouver Foundation" the year before. The Foundation was originally conceived as a vehicle to support the Vancouver Welfare Federation's operating expenses. However, Mr. VanDusen understood the potential of a permanent endowment that could eventually benefit other charitable activities as well.

"As I understand it," Tom Brown recalls, "Mr. Van considered this $1000 from Alice MacKay, and realized that you couldn't do much with that. So he thought of the idea of raising $100,000 more from ten donors."

"An interesting aspect," observes Brown, "is that the ten donors consisted of two lumbermen (W.J. VanDusen and H.R. MacMillan); two financial people (A.H. Williamson and F.R. Graham); two wholesalers (C.T. McHattie and W.H. Malkin); two retailers (C. Spencer and W.C. Woodward); the Head of B.C. Telephone (W. Farrell); and the Head of B.C. Electric (G. Kidd) ... There were no lawyers and no chartered accountants!"

By April 1946, $100,500 had been raised. This, along with Alice MacKay's $1,000 became the starting capital of the fledgling Vancouver Foundation.

"Those were the beginnings," Brown explains. "After that, Mr. VanDusen expanded the Foundation to include a whole range of charitable interests and Vancouver Foundation grew into a full-fledged community foundation ..."

THE MIDDLE YEARS

The capital and activity level of Vancouver Foundation steadily grew. By 1960 the organization had hired its first staff person, assets were close to $3 million, and over $700,000 had been distributed to the community. By the time the Foundation celebrated its 25th Anniversary in 1968, capital had reached $16.5 million, eighty funds had been established, and in total over $5 million had been distributed.

¹ Formerly the Vancouver Welfare Federation, now the United Way of the Lower Mainland

Former Executive Director, Dr. David McGann, recalls the growth of the Foundation in those years. "The capital grew largely because of the respect people had for Mr. VanDusen. People who had money held him in high esteem and knew of his long association with the Foundation. They considered giving to Vancouver Foundation the responsible thing to do."

After thirty-three years of service to the Foundation, Mr. VanDusen stepped down as Chairman in 1977. Mr. Peter Kaye, a former Head Master at Shawnigan Lake School and Executive Director at Vancouver Foundation, assumed the role of Chairman. He steered the Foundation for the next ten years with the same quiet steadiness as Mr. VanDusen.

"Back then the Foundation maintained a deliberately low profile," recalls Dr. McGann. "Mr. VanDusen set the tone, and Peter Kaye was of that mind, philosophy and metabolism himself."

"The objective was to spend as little as possible on administration and put as much as possible to work in the community."

By the time Mr. Kaye retired in 1987, capital amounted to over $173 million, there were 345 funds under administration, and over $13 million was being distributed annually to hundreds of non-profit societies.

"Part of the growth in those years was due to the 'magic formula' of endowment matches provided to charitable organizations, which we started in the late 70's. This support addressed the need for an independent source of core dollars for these agencies," states McGann.

The Foundation changed in another significant way with the introduction of Advisory Committees in 1972. Until then, all the grant-making had been through the Board's Distribution Committee. While these early Advisory Committees were composed of only three or four informed people, they made an important contribution to the effectiveness of the decision-making process that has continued.

TODAY

The current Chairman, Mr. Tom Rust, has headed the Foundation since Mr. Kaye stepped down in 1987. He is one of only three Chairmen that Vancouver Foundation has had in its fifty-year history. Mr. Rust reflects on the growth of Vancouver Foundation.

"We've gone through quite an evolution to get where we are today. We now have 536 individual funds, capital of $355 million, and we distribute over $22 million a year to charities all over British Columbia."

"Vancouver Foundation is the largest community foundation in Canada, and the fifth largest in North America. And our operating costs continue to be among the lowest."

The growth of the Foundation has necessitated a larger staff complement, although compared to other foundations of similar size it is still extremely lean. The organization is now professionally run by a staff of ten. The decision-making process has evolved as well. "Our Advisory Committees have increased in number, assumed a stronger role, and become more active. Advisory Committee members bring a vital community perspective and have a tremendous depth of knowledge and expertise," explains Rust. "As well, we are externely fortunate to have a dedicated Board composed of six nominees and six members-atlarge. Board members serve on all of our Committees, and provide a healthy link to the community and program issues."

There has also been growth in public awareness about the good works of the Foundation. "Vancouver Foundation has raised its profile considerably from the early days," states Rust, "but we need to continually strive to increase awareness."

The profile of Vancouver Foundation reached new heights on November 9, 1993. On that night, more than one thousand supporters celebrated its fifty years of history at a magnificent gala that paid tribute to the Foundation. Hundreds of volunteers and grant recipients recognized the Foundation's contribution to the community, expressing their appreciation in a powerful and talented showcase. The element of magic that transformed Alice MacKay's humble gift was still present on this evening fifty years later.

W. J. AND ALMA VANDUSEN

J.J. and Alma VanDusen both hailed from small towns in Ontario. Whitford Julian (W.J.) was born in Tara in 1889. Alma Blanche was born in Mitchell in 1888. W.J. was orphaned at a young age and raised by his sister Kitty. Alma was one of five children and grew up on a farm.

W.J. VanDusen initially studied electrical engineering at the University of Toronto. However, in 1909 he met H.R. MacMillan, who was then Assistant Director of for Forestry the federal government. This meeting not only affected career choice, but was the beginning of a professional and personal relationship that was to last for over fifty years.

While attending the University of Toronto, W.J. also met Alma Heal, who was studying at the Conservatory of Music. They married September 25, 1912 in Edmonton. W.J. had just graduated with a B.Sc. in Forestry that year and was working with the Dominion Forest Service at Pincher Creek, Alta. In an interview in 1969 VanDusen recalled: "I thought I could not afford an immediate honeymoon, so I arranged to be married on a Saturday and I was back on the job on Monday morning."

The following year, W.J. and Alma moved to Victoria, where he went to work with H.R. MacMillan, who was then setting up the B.C. Forest Service. Their only child, daughter Phae, was born in 1913.

During World War I, VanDusen was seconded to the Imperial Munitions Board. He was sent to the Queen Charlotte Islands to supervise the production of spruce for the construction of military aircraft.

After the war, VanDusen joined his friend H.R. in Vancouver. MacMillan had just established the H.R. MacMillan Export Company, (the forerunner of MacMillan Bloedel). Their humble quarters required the two to share an office, with an accountant and a stenographer in the other room. Years later, VanDusen recalled: "One of us was away all the time. One tended the shop and the other travelled the world. We'd alternate.

He'd be away for a year and I'd be away for a year ... He dealt with England and the continent, South Africa and India. I dealt with South America, Australia and the Orient."

Alma would often accompany W.J. on these trips, with daughter Phae sometimes along as well. Although she had a spirit of adventure, Alma was outwardly a quiet, private person, similar to her husband. She was an artistic soul who enjoyed music and painting. A lover of flowers, Alma grew magnificent orchids in her greenhouse and later tended beautiful gardens at their farm in Langley.

"She was the one who was always pointing out things in nature to me," reminisces her grand-daughter, Elaine Killam. "She loved to be outdoors, painting her flowers and scenery."

Alma's appreciation of nature was evident, too, in her fondness for animals. They kept an assortment of animals on their small farm. "And all the cows had names," recalls Killam. W.J. enjoyed week-ends at the farm as well. At one point, he cultivated a nut orchard, "to keep the profits up". While he clearly did not make his fortune in filberts, the orchard did offer a pleasant diversion.

W.J. and Alma VanDusen in Banff, Alberta canoeing on the Bow River – September, 1944

In 1943, VanDusen founded the Vancouver Foundation and served as Board Chairman for thirty-three years. He and Alma were exceptionally generous to the Foundation. They personally established several funds, including the Alma VanDusen Garden Fund, the W.J. VanDusen Research Fellowship Management Endowment Fund, the W.J. VanDusen Forestry Fund, the VanDusen Foundation, and the Alma VanDusen Fund. The capital of the latter fund alone totals over $20 million. According to Alma's wishes, the income on this fund is distributed to a variety of religious and community organizations. She wanted some income to go toward the establishment of bursaries for women students at U.B.C. She also specified that a portion was to be used to "benefit underprivileged children in B.C. as nearly as practicable equally between boys and girls".

Until 1994, the Vancouver Foundation also acted as agent for the W.J. VanDusen Foundation, established in Calgary, Alberta in 1970. Last year, Vancouver Foundation distributed $1,957,174 in income from the W.J. VanDusen Foundation for charities in British Columbia. Now the capital of the W.J. VanDusen Foundation is being added to that of the Vancouver Foundation.

Both W.J. and Alma were modest about their philanthropy, avoiding publicity of their good deeds. Indeed, much of their charitable giving was carried out anonymously. One such gift took place in 1970, when W.J. quietly donated $1 million to rescue the old Shaughnessy Golf Course from a real estate development. His donation, together with government funding, permitted fifty-two acres to be purchased. The anonymous donor was eventually identified, and the area became the VanDusen Botanical Gardens.

While inclined to avoid publicity, there were occasions when W.J. accepted the shine of the spotlight and the appreciation of the community. In January 1972, for instance, Mayor Thomas J. Campbell presented VanDusen with the Freedom of the City award "in recognition of outstanding service rendered to the citizens of Vancouver."

W.J. stayed actively involved in business affairs until he was in his eighties. He was a Board member of MacMillan Bloedel until 1969, and Chair of Vancouver Foundation until 1977. He died in December 1978 at the age of eighty-nine. Alma spent the last years of her life in a nursing home and died in December 1969 at the age of eighty-one.

Today, a memorial garden exists within VanDusen Gardens in honour of Alma, but both are remembered in countless, less visible ways. Through their acts of altruism and philan-

Through their acts of altruism and philanthropy, the gifts they made will continue to benefit the people of British Columbia for generations to come.

The VanDusen's were conservationists and spent much of their leisure time enjoying the outdoors.

Charity should have intelligent direction and management behind it.

ARTS AND CULTURE ADVISORY COMMITTEE

IN 1993 THE ARTS AND CULTURE ADVISORY

COMMITTEE AUTHORIZED 44 PROJECTS, TOTALLING $870,740. PROGRAM FUNDING ACCOUNTED FOR 55%, CAPITAL FUNDING FOR 36%, AND ENDOWMENT FUNDING FOR 9%.

The arts sector has experienced a marked decline in funding from traditional sources over the past few years. To fill the void, the cultural community has had to apply its creativity in different ways. The struggle for survival has induced the birth of many collaborative ventures, as groups share facilities and undertake co-productions. The cooperative spirit is artistically motivated as well. Interesting productions are being born from the union of different theatrical forms and companies.

Governments are actively working to reduce the sector's reliance on public funding. Concurrently, arts organizations are increasingly turning to the Technical Assistance Program (funded by the Foundation) to improve their management skills. There is also strong interest in the evolution of the Arts Stabilization Fund. The Arts and Culture Advisory Committee will contribute $1 million to this Fund over the next five years. It will strengthen the business management of the major arts groups through strategic planning, organizational development and deficit reduction.

In many non-urban communities throughout the province, there is burgeoning interest in arts and culture, motivated in part by the economy. As the resource base of communities declines, > they are looking to tourism to help sustain their econ-Frequently, omies. heritage building or a cultural attraction becomes the focal point of tourism development. Consequently, the Arts and Culture Advisory Committee is seeing a considerable rise in requests from small community arts organizations to help them develop their cultural activities or restore heritage facilities. While economically driven at the outset, the result of such initiatives is a healthy injection of cultural vitality to the community.

The Arts and Culture Advisory Committee is supporting cultural vitality in other ways as well. Appreciating the importance of the smaller arts organizations to the artistic fabric of the community, the Committee has been receptive to funding a broader range of groups than in the past.

GOALS

> To develop awareness, respect and appreciation for the arts. > To improve access to education and training programs in the arts. > To encourage artistic endeavours that broaden public awareness of our diverse cultures. > To encourage coordination amongst arts groups that will help to build new audiences and/or make the most efficient use of resources. > To encourage artistic endeavours that have not been done before. > To strive for the highest possible standard in artistic excellence. > To encourage operational efficiency through competent management and governance. > To promote planning and action for long term financial stability.

The Arts in Action Society organized the "Works in Progress" project, inspired by similar undertakings in other Canadian cities. The project was developed to find alternate ways to involve the public in the arts and to bring the arts community together. Fifty-eight Vancouver artists will open their studios to the public throughout the month of May. ¶ Members of the public will be able to step into the creative spaces of individual artists, see them in their community context and discuss their work. The project provides a unique way of experiencing the cultural and artistic diversity present in the city. "Works in Progress" will be the first event of its kind for Vancouver ... but, most assuredly, not the last.

CHILD AND FAMILY ADVISORY COMMITTEE

IN 1993, THE CHILD AND FAMILY ADVISORY

COMMITTEE AUTHORIZED 46 PROJECTS TOTALLING
$1,122,387. GRANTS WERE AWARDED ALMOST EQUALLY BETWEEN CAPITAL FUNDING (47%) AND

any socio-economic issues shape the goals and direction of the Child and Family Advisory Committee. Looking at the picture of the social landscape for children and families in the 90's, we see both darkness and light. Dark images of poverty, violence, shrinking public dollars to sustain swelling social services, and reaction against children's rights are visible. At the same time, we can discern the brighter hues of a heightened focus on children's issues, increased commitment to child care, and greater collaboration amongst child and family agencies.

At the community level, signs exist of revitalized interest in the well-being of children and families and a stronger recognition of the need for children's advocacy. The First Call movement, for example, asserts that children have a fundamental right to "first call" on our nation's resources. Strengthening the voices that speak out for children is increasingly recognized as work of vital importance. The Child and Family Advisory Committee demonstrated its commitment in this area by developing two goals related to advocacy. It continues to shape and define its advocacy role.

The leadership role of the Committee became more pronounced in 1993, with an increased emphasis on "lead-funding" in nonprofit day care projects. This role became more important when new government regulations required applicants to have their capital funding in place in order to qualify for provincial support.

Much of the work of the Committee has helped to "colour the child and family landscape". A broad range of activities is supported from building day cares for teen parents, to programs for special needs children, and initiatives to reduce family violence. Reflecting the needs of the community, the Committee has also been interested in projects that increase understanding of ethno-cultural diversity.

GOALS

> To support initiatives within communities that promote full access to services for children and their families.
> To support initiatives that encourage the healthy development of children and their families. > To support initiatives that develop social and physical environments to foster the optimum development of children. > To advocate as a Foundation for the rights of children as endorsed and guided by the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child. > To support initiatives that advocate for the rights of children.

The Council of Parent Participation Preschools in B.C. launched a twenty-month "Multicultural Awareness Education" project in the summer of 1993. Board members began with a day-long Multicultural Awareness Seminar. In the fall, workshops started with sixty preschools around the province. Two presentations were offered, facilitated by experienced resource people. The first provides a general introduction to multicultural issues. The second is specifically designed for an early childhood education environment and deals with issues commonly arising in such a setting. Tevaluations to date indicate a high degree of satisfaction. The Council hopes to have reached over two thousand people by the time the project ends in March 1995. Then, the organization is planning to produce a resource package based on the experiences of the participating schools. In this way, the Council can share its learning about cultural awareness with an even broader network of individuals and organizations in the early childhood field.

EDUCATION ADVISORY COMMITTEE

IN 1993, 32 GRANTS WERE AUTHORIZED BY THE EDUCATION ADVISORY COMMITTEE, TOTALLING $1,012,320. PROGRAM FUNDING ACCOUNTED FOR 62%, CAPITAL GRANTS FOR 6% AND ENDOWMENT FUNDING FOR 32%.

n abundance of educational issues made 1993 a lively year for the Education Advisory Committee. Throughout B.C. there has been a resounding call for education reform. Yet, widely divergent views exist on how to achieve such reform. Public debate rages over the merits of going back to the basics, compared to the advantages of a "learner-centered" system. Issues of equity have repeatedly surfaced. Concerns include a variety of topics such as inequitable funding formulas, disparity among schools, and the effect of budget cuts on special education and ESL.

Studies have suggested that our education system is not producing enough graduates in the science, math and technology areas. Labour market forecasters predict critical skills shortages in these fields if the current trend continues. To reverse the trend, analysts insist that science education must be strengthened. In addition, more ways must be found to increase the participation of girls in maths and sciences.

Safety issues are high on the public agenda. Concerns exist over rising violence in high schools, lack of security in elementary schools, and failure to implement seismic upgrading plans. Observers note a marked growth in enrollment in private schools and the start-up of new independent schools. The Education Advisory Committee has chosen to focus its resources on the public system which still serves the majority of the student population.

Although the general public, fueled by the media, may have the perception of an unsettled educational environment, many professionals within the field are optimistic. They attest to a multitude of innovative and exciting developments.

The Education Advisory Committee has provided the funding to enable many of these creative initiatives to be implemented. Programs supported are contributing to the evolution of an accessible and exciting educational environment.

GOALS

> To assist in making the lifelong learning experience positive, accessible, exciting and practical. > To promote innovation in areas of study that are emerging, advancing rapidly or are in danger of being ignored. > To address the learning requirements of target groups where there are specific needs because of culture, gender, race, economic, social, physical or mental reasons. > To support programs that promote good citizenship, understanding and inclusiveness of diverse cultures, community responsibility and volunteerism. > To encourage excellence, empowerment and enthusiasm among educators. > To encourage institutional change to bring about greater educational equity for all students. > To encourage alternative educational delivery systems where the funds are focused on the learner.

The Friends of the Royal British Columbia Museum's "Canadian Coastal Safari" (Safari) project takes the learning experience out of the classroom and into the "real" world. Using state-of-the-art technology, including live satellite broadcast, students participate in an interactive exploration of the unique environment of Barkley Sound. The Broadcasting from a mobile site aboard a scientific research vessel, and using submersibles and other equipment, Safari allows students to see Canadian scientists in action and ask questions live from video-interactive sites. Learners of all ages have the opportunity to participate in this educational adventure via cable television. Safari provides an example of an initiative that makes learning accessible and exciting.

ENVIRONMENT ADVISORY COMMITTEE

IN 1993, THE ENVIRONMENT ADVISORY COMMITTEE AUTHORIZED NINE GRANTS, TOTALLING $319,700. ALL WERE FOR PROGRAM ACTIVITIES.

he Environment Advisory Committee, established in 1991, is the Vancouver Foundation's newest committee. Its central purpose is to assist in the resolution of broad environmental issues arising in B.C.

Considering the multitude of environmental issues, this is a challenging field. Polarization and controversy surround many of the concerns, and complexity suffuses them all. Due to the contentious nature of the field, the Committee chose a deliberately neutral position, and has always emphasized consensual process.

Vancouver Foundation is limited to funding only registered charities. Since many smaller, single issue environmental groups are not charitable organizations, they have not been eligible for support. For this reason, the Committee has worked primarily with the larger environmental organizations that have broader interests.

As a relatively new granting area within the Foundation, the Environment Advisory Committee has examined and refined several of its funding practices. It has shifted to consideration of grant requests that are "ecosystem-wide" rather than just "province-wide". Further, it no longer insists on the involvement of "all constituencies", but instead requires that only those affected need to be involved.

The Environment Advisory Committee has succeeded in maintaining a neutral position while simultaneously advancing some "key" issues. The Committee has played a lead role in responding to the need for a land use planning framework. In particular, members recognized the necessity of examining the potential social and ecoimpact nomic of the decisions which must be made. Other areas addressed in 1993 included the need for more natural spaces in urban centres as well as the protection of habitats critical the preservation of biological diversity.

One of the emerging issues is the significant role First Nations people will increasingly be playing in managing resources. Committee members understand the need to expand the pool of First Nations professionals in forest resource management and natural resource conservation.

GOALS

> To support processes that involve the affected constituencies in their planning, management and implementation. > To assist the development and implementation of strategies achieved through consensual processes. > To support research projects, the need and methodology of which are seen to be well founded by the affected constituencies.

The First Nations House of Learning and the Faculty of Forestry at the University of British Columbia received a grant in 1993 for a project entitled "Educating First Nations People in Forest Resources Management and Natural Resources Conservation". The project developed out of recognition that First Nations were increasingly sharing in the management of B.C. forests, parks and other natural resources. Yet, there was an urgent need for more professionally trained aboriginal people in the natural resource science field. To address the under representation of First Nations in forestry and natural resource management, the First Nations House of Learning and the Faculty of Forestry together designed an effective program of activities to recruit and support First Nations students in these areas. Formal education, combined with traditional knowledge, will enhance the expertise and participation of First Nations in B.C.'s resource management sector. This timely project will contribute to preparing First Nations for their emerging roles and responsibilities, to the benefit of all British Columbians.

HEALTH AND WELFARE ADVISORY COMMITTEE

IN 1993, THE HEALTH AND WELFARE ADVISORY COMMITTEE AUTHORIZED 59 GRANTS, TOTALLING $1,866,765. OF THIS TOTAL, 62% WAS AWARDED FOR CAPITAL PROJECTS, 35% FOR PROGRAM SUPPORT, AND 3% FOR ENDOWMENT GRANTS.

he Health and Welfare Advisory Committee recognizes the changes affecting many of its applicant groups. Demographic shifts in communities throughout British Columbia are taxing social service and health care organizations. There are a growing number of seniors in need of a range of independent living options. Demands for adult day care, caregiver support, accessible housing and transportation are on the rise. Similar needs exist for people with disabilities. Mainstream agencies the Lower Mainland are working hard to adapt their services and programs to a population of increasing cultural diversity. Ethnospecific or immigrantserving organizations must endeavour to cope with a burgeoning number of clients and escalating needs.

Meanwhile, the cost of home ownership in the Lower Mainland, baby boomer interest in "quality of life", and other factors are creating a noticeable exodus to smaller communities throughout the province. This trend, known as "penturbia", is resulting in rapid population growth and new strains being placed on community agencies in outlying areas. All these escalating needs place additional pressure on the resources of the Health and Welfare Advisory Committee for expansion and new service delivery grants.

GOALS

> To encourage initiatives that support the development and facilitation of interagency cooperation. > To encourage the development of skills and competencies for organizational and community development. > To promote linkages between the social, health, economic and environmental sectors within communities. > To assist families to more effectively carry out their essential functions of nurturing and supporting family members. > To promote health in the broad sense - caring, safety and support - through prevention, remediation and treatment. > To support seniors to maintain maximum independence and dignity.

At the same time as organizations are stretched by service demands, government's Directions" for the delivery, governance and financing of health care, means significant adjustments throughout the system. Non-profit agencies now require sophisticated fund-raising and superior management skills in the face of increasing competition for available dollars. As a result, heavy demand on the Technical Assistance Program is expected to continue.

Innovation and creativity have also sprung from the adversity of this challenging environment. Some community organizations are fostering a vigorous entrepreneurial spirit. Many are cultivating healthy interdependence; finding new ways to collaborate, and placing a new emphasis on mutual support.

The "Community Access Project" of the Nelson District Community Resources Society is a collaborative project between three agencies. It involves a range of activities to facilitate integration of people with disabilities into the community. ¶ Activities will include promotion of employment opportunities, community participation and educational awareness. It will also involve work with community, social and religious groups to encourage them to open their activities to people with disabilities. ¶ When completed, the Community Access Project will be formally evaluated to serve as a model to others. There is already strong interest in this project amongst a number of agencies in the West Kootenays.

YOUTH ADVISORY COMMITTEE

IN 1993 THE YOUTH ADVISORY COMMITTEE
AUTHORIZED 30 PROJECTS, TOTALLING $795,582.

PROGRAM FUNDING ACCOUNTED FOR 85% OF THIS TOTAL, COMPARED TO 12% FOR CAPITAL, AND 3% FOR ENDOWMENT SUPPORT.

he Youth Advisory Committee sees evidence of a growing trend of youth empowerment. Tired of negative stereotypes, many teenagers are striving to prove that they are not a "lost generation". They are eager to have a voice, and the opportunities to hear that voice are growing.

However, their ability to assume leadership roles depends, in part, on the willingness of adults to offer them such roles. Society paradoxically condemns youth for irresponsibility, while giving them few tangible opportunities for leadership and decision-making. A shift is taking place, though, as youth participation grows.

There is a resurgence of interest in youth advocacy.

Communities are offering youth forums, the media is inviting participation, and there are more "youth for youth" initiatives, all based on the importance of youth speaking for themselves. The Youth Advisory Committee has chosen to play a role in reinforcing the value of these initiatives and encouraging projects that fully involve young people in the planning, decision-making and implementation.

While encouraging youth empowerment, the Committee also recognizes that many successful initiatives require the participation of adults. Such effective activities as mentorship programs depend on the involvement of caring and supportive adults who value the mutual learning that takes place.

The Committee is concerned about the problems "at risk" youth face in their lives. As well, the issues of violence and abuse need attention. Service agencies dealing with the spectrum of youth needs are challenged to provide solutions that are more than "band-aid" responses. There is a growing interest in preventive approaches and in working together to deal with issues in a collaborative way.

GOALS

> To promote health enhancing attitudes and behaviours in young people. > To promote activities that enable young people to be accepted and valued as contributing members at home, in school and in society at large. > To promote cross-cultural activities that lead to better understanding among young people. > To promote community initiatives that address basic needs of young people which include adequate food, health care, shelter and social supports. > To promote projects that enhance the self-esteem, leadership skills and competency of young people.

On behalf of six community associations that operate in conjunction with the Vancouver Board of Parks and Recreation, the West End Community Association sponsored the "Coordinated Youth Services" project in 1993. It involves development of a cooperative and coordinated service model for at-risk youth using the community centre as a base. Working with other agencies, this neighbourhood hub approach provides a form of "one-stop shopping" for health, education, recreation and social services. The participation of youth on an Advisory Committee is built into the design along with working teams of parents, community leaders, and school staff. Funding provides support for one Youth Worker at each of the six sites. If The project reflects two specific interests of the Youth Advisory Committee. It is targeted towards at-risk youth, and involves collaboration and partnership among youth and youth-serving agencies. If The Coordinated Youth Services project offers an exciting model that promises to be both effective and cost efficient. Many look to it with enthusiasm and anticipation as new ways of meeting the needs of youth continue to be explored.

B.C. MEDICAL SERVICES FOUNDATION

THE YEAR 1993 MARKED THE 25TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE B.C. MEDICAL SERVICES FOUNDATION.

stablished in 1968, it is governed by its own Board of Directors and operates under the administration of Vancouver Foundation.

The funding base comes from a mingling of its own income with the medical research funds of Vancouver Foundation.

Additional funds from the W.J. VanDusen Foundation provide a necessary supplement to this base. Over one million dollars is distributed each year for education and research projects in health care and clinical science.

In the early days of the Foundation, the research needs were quite different from today. A newspaper article written in 1970 announces, for example, that: "... the campaign to wipe out Rubella in B.C. was boosted by a gift of $25,000 from B.C. Medical Services Foundation. ... The money is to go for vaccine as part of the program to immunize 400,000 children aged between one and twelve in the province."

While health care issues may have shifted, the Foundation's responsiveness to community needs has continued – and deepened. Today the Foundation relies on a ten-person Advisory Committee whose members are in touch with the range of issues and trends in the health care field. It has moved from funding basic academic research to emphasizing community-based work. While maintaining rigorous standards, the Foundation supports research that reaches beyond the lab benches and test tubes and into the community.

Reflected in the work of the B.C. Medical Services Foundation is a sense of responsibility to develop the cadre of future health professionals. To this end, the Foundation contributes to the > training and development of young research scholars through bursaries, predoctoral fellowships and summer scholarships.

> For instance, the Summer Research Scholarships enable up to fifteen post-graduate students to do summer work in their field under the supervision of a professor. Each Scholar receives an award of $5,000. Since its inception in 1990, sixty students have benefitted from the program.

The contribution of B.C.

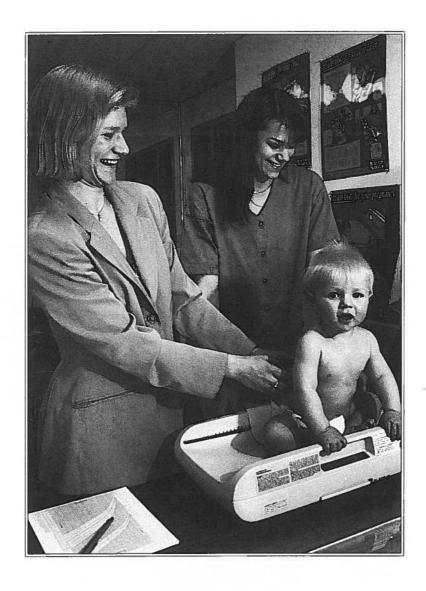

Medical Services Foundation goes beyond research and education. Funded projects also provide employment to research assistants, technicians and graduate students at a time when research jobs are scarce. In 1993 over $585,000 in grant funding alone went towards personnel costs.

Outside the research community, the B.C. Medical Services Foundation is not well known. It is a low-key operation with the equivalent of just one staff person. Yet, supported by dedicated volunteers, this remarkable foundation plays a very important role in the growth, relevance and vitality of health care research in British Columbia.

And the beneficiaries include all of us.

PURPOSE

> To provide funds for any and all purposes directed to the provision and extension of health services to persons resident temporarily or permanently in B.C., for the advancement of research in medical and related sciences, for the provision of scholarships, bursaries and loans to undergraduate and post graduate students of medicine and for such other charitable purposes as may, in the opinion of the Board of Directors of the Foundation, be consistent with these objectives.

Dr. Sheila Innis of the UBC Department of Paediatrics received a grant for community-based research. She is studying the prevalence of iron deficiency anaemia and low iron status of nine-month old infants in relation to feeding practices, socio-economic and cultural background. Her research involves sampling five hundred infants who are representative of the Vancouver population. The Rather than being held in an academic setting, Dr. Innis' research has taken place in community facilities and public health clinics. Preliminary results suggest a surprisingly high incidence of low iron status and a need to ensure that there is ongoing support of breast-feeding mothers so that they know how and when to introduce their babies to solid foods. According to Dr. Innis, the study promotes breast-feeding and will help breast-feeding mothers get from 'first base' to 'home'.

DONORS INFORMATION

Donors who wish to establish a fund with Vancouver Foundation may choose any of the following options.

UNRESTRICTED FUND

This type of fund allows the donor's charitable giving to have the greatest possible impact. The income of the fund is applied to the community's most pressing current needs. All of the grants awarded to charitable organizations from unrestricted funds are made only after applications for funding have been considered and recommended by an informed Advisory Committee.

The Community Fund provides further information about Vancouver Foundation's principal unrestricted fund.

FIELD OF INTEREST FUND

The donor may establish a fund with the income to be distributed through one or more of the Foundation's seven fields of interest (Arts and Culture, Child and Family, Education, Environment, Health and Welfare, Youth, and Medical).

DONOR ADVISED FUND

This fund is established with purposes corresponding to the donor's broad charitable aims. The donor (or appointees) makes recommendations to the foundation at least annually. At this time he or she indicates which charitable organizations should receive the fund's income. Upon the donor's death, the income from the fund is distributed through the Advisory Committee in the appropriate field of interest.

DESIGNATED FUND

Income from this type of fund is directed to the specific charitable organization named when the fund is established. While an individual can initiate a designated fund, it is usually started by an agency that makes contributions to its own endowment fund.

OTHER GIVING OPTIONS

If a donor wishes to support the work of Vancouver Foundation through a charitable contribution rather than by establishing a fund, the following gift options exist. Donations may be made to:

- > The Community Fund
- > A specified "open" fund
- > The United Way of the Lower Mainland Endowment Fund.

HOW TO ESTABLISH A FUND

The initiating capital to start a fund is $10,000. Once the capital is in hand, the process for establishing a fund is quite straightforward.

- 1. The prospective donor writes a letter advising that he or she wishes to establish a fund. The letter should include the following information:
- > the name of the proposed fund
- > how the income is to be used (purpose of the fund)
- > whether it is to be an open or closed fund Note: Any organization to be a recipient of income from the fund must be a federally registered charity.
- 2. Upon receipt of the letter, Vancouver Foundation draws up a Deed of Gift, which is approved by our Legal Advisor. This Deed of Gift is then sent to the donor for review.
- 3. If the Deed of Gift is acceptable, the donor signs and returns it with the fund's initiating capital of at least $10,000.
- 4. The Deed of Gift is presented at the next quarterly meeting of the Board of Directors. If it is accepted, the donor is immediately notified and provided with an income tax receipt for the initiating capital. If for some reason the fund is not accepted, the $10,000 initiating capital is returned.

Standard clauses showing how gifts may be made to Vancouver Foundation by means of a will or through an insurance policy are available upon request.

THE COMMUNITY FUND

THE COMMUNITY FUND WAS ESTABLISHED

IN 1978 BY TWO ANONYMOUS DONORS WHO

UNDERSTOOD THE NEED TO ENCOURAGE

his unrestricted fund is particularly important to Vancouver Foundation. Although Vancouver Foundation is the largest community foundation in Canada, only thirty-five per cent of the funds are discretionary. Yet it is discretionary funding that offers the most flexibility and versatility. Indeed, the strength of a community foundation lies in its ability to respond to new and emerging issues. The Community Fund provides a vehicle for donors to support such responsiveness.

At the discretion of the Board of Directors, income from the Community Fund is applied to the fields of interest. It is distributed amongst the seven Advisory Committees according to current needs and demand. In this way, the Foundation can respond to changing community needs. It can also undertake special initiatives, since the Board may shift funds to an Advisory Committee if a pressing need arises.

The Community Fund is an appealing charitable giving option to many donors. They are assured that gifts ultimately flow to the Advisory Committees where funding decisions are made by experts in the field. Furthermore, donors are not required to provide a minimum amount of capital, as they are if they choose to establish a fund. As with any of the "open" funds, the Community Fund accepts donations of any size.

The farsighted individuals who established the Community Fund made an important contribution to Vancouver Foundation. Through it, they created a fund for the future.

AUDITORS' REPORT

To the Directors of Vancouver Foundation

We have audited the statement of financial position of Vancouver Foundation as at December 31, 1993 and the statement of changes in contributed principal and the funds' income statement for the year then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Foundation's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform an audit to obtain reasonable assurance whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation.

In our opinion, these financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Vancouver Foundation as at December 31, 1993 and the changes in contributed principal and the funds' income for the year then ended in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS DECEMBER 31, 1993

1. CONSOLIDATED AND OTHER TRUST FUNDS

The Consolidated Trust Fund comprises those assets over which the Foundation exercises discretionary investment control within guidelines established by the Board of Directors. The Other Trust Funds comprise those assets which the Foundation does not exercise discretionary investment control and which are administered in accordance with specific directions from the donors.

2. ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The following accounting policies used by Vancouver Foundation are stated here to assist in understanding the Foundation's financial statements.

Bequests and grants

Bequests are recorded upon receipt of the donated assets. Bequests in a form other than cash or marketable securities are recorded at values assigned by the Board of Directors. Grants are recorded when paid by the Foundation.

Investments

Investments within the Consolidated Trust Fund are valued at current market prices on the last business day of the fiscal period. Unrealized gains or losses arising as a result of the revaluation of investments to current market prices as well as any realized gains or losses arising from investment transactions are reflected as capital surplus. Investments within the Other Trust Funds are stated at cost and any realized gains or losses arising from investment transactions are included as part of contributed principal.

Office equipment and leasehold improvements

The cost of office equipment and leasehold improvements are recorded and expensed when incurred.

Investment income

Interest income on bonds, mortgages and short-term notes is accrued as earned. Dividends which have been declared are recorded as income on the date of record set for the dividend. Administrative expenses

Administrative expenses and trust company fees are recorded on an accrual basis.

3. RESTRICTIONS ON PRINCIPAL AND INCOME

Substantially all of the contributed principal and capital surplus of the Vancouver Foundation and the income from contributed principal is restricted as to payment.

4. TRUST COMPANY AND INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT FEES In June 1993, the Foundation transferred the management of its Consolidated Trust Fund investments to three investment managers in anticipation of generating a higher return. Fees charged to the Foundation are based on a percent of the market value of investments.

5. COMMITMENTS

Vancouver Foundation has firm grant commitments totalling $5,561,017 which will be paid out of distributable income as follows:

1994 Subsequent years	$ 4,911,017 650,000
	$ 5.561.017

In addition, the Vancouver Foundation has grant commitments of $850,000 (1992 $1,275,000) which will be made if supporting funds from other organizations are received.

Vancouver Foundation has the following lease commitments related to office rent-

ommunents related to office.	I CIII:

NOTE: The above financial information has been taken from audited Financial Statements of W.J. VanDusen Foundation prepared at October 31st, being the year end of the Foundation.

The W.J. VanDusen Foundation was established in Calgary, Alberta in 1970. Its areas of interest include education, medical research and related equipment, and public health and welfare as carried out by voluntary agencies. Vancouver Foundation acts as agent for the W.J. VanDusen Foundation and distributes income from the Foundation within British Columbia in conformity with Vancouver Foundation policy and practices. Selected applications which have been recommended by Vancouver Foundation's Advisory Committees and approved by its Distribution Committee are recommended to the Directors of the W.J. VanDusen Foundation for funding.

VANCOUVER FOUNDATION

A perpetual legacy for the people of British Columbia

APPLICATION PROCESS AND GRANTS & DISTRIBUTIONS 1993

Many Happy Returns

he following information will help explain the application process. If you require further information, please feel free to contact us at: Suite 230, One Bentall Centre, 505 Burrard St., Vancouver, B.C. V7X 1M3 / Telephone: (604) 688-2204 / Fax: (604) 688-4170.

1. In order to determine if your project meets basic criteria and falls within our areas of interest, telephone or write to request a copy of our General Funding Guidelines and Advisory Committee Goals (Arts and Culture; Child and Family; Education; Environment; Health and Welfare; Youth).

Note: Vancouver Foundation can only support registered charities so you must have a federal charitable tax number.

- 2. Once you have reviewed this material, prepare an outline of your proposed project. You are welcome to phone or meet with a Program Director to discuss your idea. However, the volume of requests is large and we have found that a written enquiry is most effective.
- 3. The proposal should be clear and brief (no more than 2-3 pages). It should provide the following information:
- > mandate of the applicant organization
- > needs or specific problems that the project will address
- > activities that the organization is proposing to undertake (plan of action)
- > proposed timeline
- > geographic scope of the project
- > indication of community support

> projected budget including other funding sources and the amount requested from Vancouver Foundation

Note: Vancouver Foundation does not provide 100% funding. We look for an investment by your own organization, contributions from the community and support from other funding sources.

- 4. The Program Director reviews your proposal to determine basic eligibility and viability. After making this preliminary assessment, the Program Director may write back for more information. If the Foundation is interested in considering the project, the Program Director invites you to submit an application. Since this pre-application process can take over a month, you are advised to send your enquiry at least four weeks before the application deadline.
- 5. Vancouver Foundation has three annual deadlines for receiving completed applications. They usually fall in early January, April and September. It takes approximately twelve weeks from the time you apply until you get the final decision. However, including the enquiry stage, an applicant should allow at least four months. Since the Vancouver Foundation does not provide retroactive funding, it is important to plan well in advance.
- 6. A five-page application form must be completed in full and submitted prior to the deadline. With the application, you are asked to provide specific attachments (e.g. your organization's Board of Directors and financial statements). The appropriate Advisory Committee will review only the material explicitly requested by Vancouver Foundation.

- 7. Prior to consideration by the Advisory Committee, the Program Director thoroughly assesses your application. You can expect to meet with or discuss by phone the details of your proposal with the Program Director. Occasionally, an Advisory Committee member will also contact an applicant. As part of the assessment, the Program Director routinely consults with other funders and informed people in the field.
- 8. Advisory Committees are made up of volunteers who are community leaders and respected professionals. At scheduled Advisory Committee meetings, members consider the staff report, discuss each application, and then make a funding recommendation. The Committee's funding recommendations are presented to the Distribution Committee (made up of those members of the Board of Directors who also chair the Advisory Committees). The Distribution Committee makes the final decision and approves all grants.

- 9. You receive a letter advising of the Board's decision and outlining the terms and conditions of any grant that has been awarded.
- 10. After a grant has been awarded, Vancouver Foundation expects the following:
- > interim and/or final reports
- > a possible site visit by the Program Director
- > approval from the Program Director prior to any substantial alterations in plan
- > proper fiscal management and reporting
- > acknowledgement of support from Vancouver Foundation.
